

During the test, the examiner will assess your performance with a Tablet PC or checklist. All possible riding errors are shown on the Tablet PC or checklist. If the learner commits any serious mistakes, he/ she fails the test immediately. For less serious mistakes, he/she will accumulate penalty points ranging from 2 to 10 for each mistake. A learner who accumulates penalty points in excess of a predetermined number of points fails the test. Whether or not you succeed in your practical test, the test report or checklist used for the test will be given to you at the end of the test so that you can learn from and correct your mistakes. For identification purpose, learner riders are not allowed to wear a full-face helmet during the practical riding test.

SYSTEMATIC LEARNING

11. The learning progress differs from person to person. Therefore, the number of training hours needed before one develops the right skills and attitude differs greatly from one individual to another. Learner riders should adopt a systematic planned approach. They must be able to go through the lessons systematically to suit their own development in the course of learning. The main causes of accidents amongst young and new motorcycles are lack of experience and judgment. They should practice regularly and consistently as there are no short cuts to becoming a competent and careful rider.
